Angie Ahearn

Strategic Marketing Director, Houston

Angie Ahearn serves as the Strategic Marketing Director for the Houston market. In this role, Angie leads the efforts to elevate Stream's marketing department's capabilities and services offering to our internal and external clients; acts as the point of contact and marketing leader for our local market professionals; and strategically supports our Houston team's marketing and business development needs.

A seasoned advertising agency professional, Angie brings extensive brand strategy, campaign management and business development experience with local and national clients across industries including technology, oil and gas, retail and healthcare. Known for building long-term client relationships, Angie enjoys the creative process from inception to execution and believes that true collaboration results in continued, long-term success.
